PC Download game Star Wars Battlefront Star Wars Battlefront is a shooter game that brings fans and gamers the opportunity to. Why BlackBerry has no competition This is a real blowout - an excellent and imaginative piece of software - but there are a few things that I didn't like. First, the subtitle "So much for the hype." Maybe the hype was a good thing, a way of getting people's attention to the fact that we'd been standing on the verge of some radical change, and that is what the hype was for. Anyway, there's no standing on the verge of anything. For a long time now, the RIM organization has been quite, quite confident of its position in the marketplace - it's the only operating system in town that isn't a Microsoft product. And if that's not enough for you, allow me to go over some of the things I didn't like about the hype. The device itself is pretty; I don't like the keyboard on it - it's not bad, just not my style. The keys are reasonably responsive, but too small. I'd have preferred to see it without the keyboard. I like the BlackBerry's styling. The "buzzing" that goes along with the keyboard is cool, but it's so loud. The cell phone from the start has seemed to me like a bit of an overreaction to the fax machines and phones of the day - to the point where they were starting to design some pretty funky phones. But I'm no hater - I actually love the phone, and I like the keyboard. But the best thing about the hype wasn't the hype. It was the (well, not entirely true) press release that trumpeted, "Enterprise customers embracing the BlackBerry platform." This is a key point in the hype - the point at which, when you and I look at the world, RIM can swoop in and claim that it's not a Microsoft product, it's a "real computer." There's no hope for Windows Mobile, because Microsoft is the only PC company in the world. Microsoft is the only company that has the software to run Windows and the Microsoft OS, and, with its latest releases, it has both software and OS together in the same package. That's the future - everybody is moving over to a Microsoft OS. (I've even met people who, when I said, "I'm a Windows user," replied, "Oh, I don't want to do that." So now
