The abundant adipocytes as a cause of elevated adiponectin levels in obese patients [\[\[@pone.0154795.ref038\]\]](#) may be the main cause of insulin resistance in obese patients. In addition to a decrease in insulin sensitivity, overweight and obesity are associated with an increase in cortisol levels and serum cortisol levels correlate with BMI [\[\[@pone.0154795.ref039\]\]](#). However, in this study, we did not observe a significant change in serum cortisol in overweight patients in comparison with obese patients. We also did not observe a correlation between cortisol levels and obesity. In another study, serum cortisol levels in normal weight and obese subjects were comparable to the normal physiological range [\[\[@pone.0154795.ref040\]\]](#). This indicates that the cortisol levels in obese patients are unlikely to be due to obesity per se. Although the precise mechanism underlying the observed changes in body composition is not yet clear, our results show that reduced leptin levels and increased adiponectin levels are closely related to body composition with a shift from adipose tissue toward skeletal muscle and decreased fat mass in overweight and obese patients. Alterations in leptin levels may be involved in the pathogenesis of overweight and obesity, but these changes are not reflected in the serum cortisol levels. Therefore, the relationship between obesity and leptin/adiponectin is complex and should be elucidated further. Future studies need to address the relationship between the changes in these adipokines and insulin resistance, and their usefulness as biomarkers of insulin resistance. "Whose version of reality is it?" But that question is closer to the realm of thinking than listening, or being. To better understand the truth, we have to listen to ourselves, as well as to our own experiences, needs, and desires. Truth is not a concept. Truth is a relationship to reality. Because we are sinners, we do not have the perfect right to truth, we only have the right to a relationship with truth. "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." (Romans 10:9, KJV).1. Technical Field The present invention relates to a water-absorbable fiber material and a water-absorbable fiber product. The present invention also relates to the use of a water-absorbable fiber material in fiber products, which may be used as disposable articles in daily life, such as, for example, baby diapers, training pants, feminine hygiene products, and adult incontinence products. 2. Background Art Water-absorbable fiber materials are materials that possess a high water-absorption capacity, and have been employed for disposable items such as diapers. For example, a water-absorbable fiber material having a high water-absorbability and excellent softness may be employed for use as a main component in disposable articles such as baby diapers and adult incontinence products.
