Click on the .Prosthetic valve endocarditis: a comparison of the 1984 Duke criteria with the 2004 Duke criteria. We sought to determine whether the 1984 Duke criteria and the 2004 Duke criteria identified similar populations of patients with prosthetic valve endocarditis. A total of 275 patients with prosthetic valve endocarditis were reviewed, of whom 202 had prosthetic valve endocarditis diagnosed using the 1984 Duke criteria and 80 patients had prosthetic valve endocarditis diagnosed using the 2004 Duke criteria. Prosthetic valve endocarditis prevalence rates were calculated for each of the 5 years; Staphylococcus aureus and Enterococcus spp. were the most common pathogens (43.1%). Overall mortality rates were 14.4% (n = 35) and 15.5% (n = 25), and rates of major complications were 10.5% (n = 26) and 15% (n = 20), respectively. Staphylococcal infections were more common in 2004 than in 1984. The overall sensitivity and specificity for the diagnosis of prosthetic valve endocarditis in 1984 and 2004 were 72.9% and 77.4% and 81.9% and 75.0%, respectively. The sensitivity and specificity for the diagnosis of prosthetic valve endocarditis by the 2004 Duke criteria were 77.9% and 77.4%, respectively. No significant differences were observed in demographic characteristics, causative pathogens, or rates of major complications and overall mortality for patients with prosthetic valve endocarditis who met both the 1984 and 2004 Duke criteria compared with patients who only met the 2004 criteria. e24f408de9
