004(10).Q: Asynchronous NSURLConnection not calling `didReceiveData` delegate method I'm setting up a `NSURLConnection` (in the background thread) to download some HTML in my app. When I'm running the app in the simulator, the delegate method `didReceiveData` is never called and the connection keeps running. When running in the device, the `didReceiveData` method is called immediately after the class is loaded, without any delay. I'm using the `NSURLConnection` with delegate and completion block in this way: `NSURLConnection`

*urlConnection = [[NSURLConnection alloc] initWithRequest:[NSURLRequest requestWithURL:url] delegate:self]; [urlConnection start]; and the delegate method looks like this: - (void)connection:(NSURLConnection *)connection didReceiveResponse:(NSURLResponse *)response { if(response.expectedContentLength) { // We should get a partial download of the body NSLog(@"expectedContentLength set"); } else { //
The connection will be fully downloaded by the end

of the delegate method

NSLog(@"expectedContentLength not set"); } } - (void)connection:(NSURLConnection *)connection didReceiveData:(NSData *)data { // We're done [self.receivedData appendData:data]; [self.receivedData writeToFile:self.filePath atomically:YES]; } - (void)connectionDidFinishLoadi ng:(NSURLConnection *)connection { // Load the contents of the file at the location specified NSString *htmlContents = [[NSString alloc] initWithContentsOfFile:self.filePath]; ... } - (void)connection:(NSURLConnection *)connection didFailWithError:(NSError *)error { // We couldn't download the file NSLog(@"Error: %@", [error
